MID-SUMMER INACTIVITY

This is the season when nothing happens in Jewish communal life. All the conventions which for some occult reason, are scheduled to take place in the hot summer weather, are now over. The Zionists are resting up after the orgies of emotional disturbance in Pittsburg. Rabbi Aba Hillel Silver is the only delegate who still keeps busy sending wires to the "Jewish Bulletin" confounding the confusion which was wrought at the convention by his unguarded indulgence in gossip with Fishman and other loose conversationalists. The conventions of the respective organizations of the orthodox and reform rabbis are things of secretarial record. There were the usual attempts by rabbinical balloons at flights to the lofty regions of prophecy where sway is held by the redoubtable Isaiah and Ezekiel and Amos. There was the customary twaddle at the Reform convention about precipitating a new era of social justice, and the annual surgical operation on the limbs of Judaistic tradition. At the orthodox conclave there was the expected recurrence of wrangling about ritualistic minutae and pietistic deadwood. An addition to the list of summer confabulations was provided by a group of Lithuanian Jewish emigres who decided to band together in a new organization. These scattered extracts of Lithuania were probably overcome by longing for a slice of succulent herring a la Litvak and the music of the sibilant "Litvis" dialect. Our good friend, Henry Hurwich, tender of the Menorah, has come forward as the leader of the "Lightwaks." Bernard G. Richards, the tenacious secretary of the American Jewish Congress, is naturally a prominent member of the new organization. A goodly number of recognized American Jewish intellectuals have answered the call of the blood, and have sworn allegiance to Hurwich's clan.

The pulse of the Jewish communal organism is now beating at a sluggish tempo. When the hot weather sets in, Jewish leadership concentrates its thoughts on the beauties of sunsets and the delights of turf and surf, and relegates the concerns of Jewish life to the mothballs until the next season.

OUR REPRESENTATIVE AT THE OLYMPICS

To the Jewish sporting element of this city it is a matter of gratification that a Toronto Jewish girl was selected to represent Canada at the Olympic games which will shortly be held at Amsterdam. Fanny Rosenfeld is recognized as the best girl athlete in Canada, and is, perhaps, the best all-round girl athlete in the world. She excels not only im team sports, such as baseball, basket-ball and hockey, but is supreme in individual sports. She is one of the two or three best girl runners in Canada in the one hundred meter, two hundred meter, and eight hundred meter distances. In addition she holds the records for the discus throws and the broad jump. She is regarded as a sure point winner for Canada at the Olympics.

It is peculiar that athletics and sports among girls are more highly developed in Canada than in any other country in the world. To achieve supremacy in this field in Canada is to attain world celebrity.

The Toronto Jewish community will await with interest news of Miss Rosenfeld's exploits in Amsterdam, and is sure to accord her a flattering welcome upon her return.

Miss Rosenfeld commands the respect of all sportsmen as an athlete who has always lived up to the best traditions of sportsmanship. Whether she wins or loses we will have reason to be proud of her as an exponent of the best standards of athletics and sports.

THE NEED OF A SPECIAL SESSION OF THE ZIONIST CONGRESS

The report of the Agency commission has met with distinct disfavour in most Zionist circles. The English Federation of Zionists, at its recent convention, gave expression to its disappointment in no uncertain terms. Its attitude was all the more significant in view of the election of Lord Melchett (Sir Alfred Mond, member of the commission), to the presidency of the organization. The executives of the American branch of the Poelei Zion, and of the world organization in Europe, have come out strongly against the Agency. The Poelei Zion party will definitely oppose the Agency report at the next conference of the Zionist Actions Committee, which is shortly to be held.

The feeling prevails that before any further commitments are made by the Zionist organization with reference to the implementing of the Agency scheme, a special session of the Zionist Congress must be convened to reconsider the situation. The suggestions of the Agency report foreshadowing the abolition of the Keren Hayesod and the National Fund and the Kvuzoth, the while offering very meagre financial compensation have thrown consternation into the Zionist camps. Thoughtful Zionists now realize that the implications of the Agency scheme are far graver than they had conceived them to be. And they wish for an opportunity to think the proposition over again.

The Zionist organization is now facing a crisis. The convocation of a special congress would help greatly to clarify the situation and allay the feeling of despair which is taking possession of Zionist hearts and threatens to paralyze Zionist activity.

Declares Jews Do Not Burden Board

With reference to an article appearing in the Montreal Gazette entitled "School Deficit of $130,000 Forecast," Michael Hirsch, a member of the royal commission appointed by the Provincial Government to investigate and report on school conditions on the island of Montreal, and which made a report three years ago, as a result of which a submission was made to the Canadian courts, and finally to the Privy Council, has furnished the following statement:

"May I call your attention to an article in your issue of the 7th inst. entitled, "School Deficit of $130,000 Forecast?"

"Presumably this is published by, or with the consent of the Protestant Central School Board.

"After stressing the fact on an expenditure of about three and a half million dollars, a deficit estimated at $90,000 will occur for this year, and that a probable deficit of $130,000 is apparent for 1928-1929, the conclusion is reached that this is all due to the presence of about 12,000 Jewish pupils in the schools. The article concludes with the following paragraph:

"'The argument of the Board is that, with the inadequate rate, Protestants are burdened with the education of Jews, and that it is only just that the entire cost of Jewish education should be paid for from the neutral panel.'

"This is all very nice for those who do not know the facts, and I am sure that the Protestant Central School Board have no desire or intention of misleading anyone, being a body of fair-minded men administering a trust for the benefit of all concerned.

"May I, therefore, call attention to the following figures. In the years specified the Jewish property owners of Montreal paid into the Protestant School panel, the following sums, being ten mills on the dollar of the assessed value of their real estate holdings:

1925-26	$379,696.25
1926-27	407,193.67
1927-28	425,725.50

"In addition to this hundreds, probably thousands of Jewish proprietors own their real estate under corporate names, paying their school assessment into the neutral panel at 12 mills on the dollar. By a conservative estimate, not less than $30,000,000 of property is so owned, paying $360,000 to the neutral panel, of which the Protestant Board gets one-third (another $120,000). Added to this is the fact that thousands of Jewish investors own shares in and contribute to the financial success of corporations who pay their school taxes into the neutral panel. While this amount cannot be arrived at there is no doubt that it is a very considerable one.

"Furthermore, our friends of the Central Board forget that when they took over the financial administration of the various school municipalities, some of them were showing large annual deficits. Even the equalization of the rate at ten mills (raising Westmount and reducing Verdun for instance) could hardly have overcome this condition. Another point to be remembered is that the neutral panel was raised from ten to twelve mills to take care of extra cost.

"The Central Board claim that their per capita cost has increased to $75 per pupil, which, if correct—and I have no reason to doubt it—applies to all the children in all the schools and not to the Jewish pupils only. Why therefore attach responsibility for deficits of a meagre 3 per cent. of the total revenue, to the Jewish pupils only? The deficit may well be a general one resulting from the total revenue not meeting the total expenditure.

"I have no objection to the Central Board trying as suggested to fix $75, if correct, as the amount for adjustment between direct Jewish taxes and the neutral panel subsidy, provided all parties interested are in accord, but I do object to the statement that the 'Protestants are being burdened with the education of the Jews.'

"The school situation has long since passed the narrow limits of such insinuations and should be treated in a broader and more public spirited manner, or we will never realize that desirable condition of amity and good will which should permeate a community such as ours.

"I will not say anything just now about the result of the submission to the Privy Council, opinions differ so much as to the real purport of the same. This will have to be reviewed and consolidated in due time, and I hope with the co-operation of all the various interests concerned will settle the vexed Jewish school question in this my native province for at least the rest of my natural existence. With some of my friends, we have been struggling with it for over a quarter of a century and we are getting heartily sick and tired of being told that we are a 'burden' on our fellow citizens.

"I know," concludes Mr. Hirsch, "this is not the general opinion of the people at large, and the fair-minded should use their influence to the end that such erroneous impressions be eradicated."

Speaking of the Yiddish Stage

In the month of June, when trees and canoes seem more inviting than plush seats and backdrops, rumours of this and that find their way to our delicately constructed ears, writes Leonard Traube in the New York World. Managers report their determination to turn over a new leaf for next season, and proceed to circulate their cries to a May-drowsy public. Actors and actresses prepare to sign on the dotted line for the season of 1928-1929. Changes in policy are announced. Luncheons and banquets are tendered like so many slaps on the back. New ideas for the advancement of the theatre are given birth. It is this last with which we are most concerned.

Mr. Maurice Schwartz, director and founder of the Yiddish Art Theatre, is launching a campaign for the purpose of enlisting 50,000 subscribers to the cause of art. Subscriptions are in denominations of $3, $5 and $100. The $3 membership carries with it the privilege of a twenty-five per cent. reduction on two tickets. The $5 membership entitles the subscriber to the same reduction on four tickets. If you wish to become a life member of the Yiddish Art Theatre Subscription Club, I beckon you to make out your cheque to the amount of $100. If this amount is not available, I enter the earnest plea that you grab your cheque book in hand and send $3 or $5 to Mr. Schwartz. Your membership card will privilege you to secure tickets not only for week days but Saturdays, Sundays, and all holidays. Of this I am certain: Mr. Schwartz shall have one member in the person of the present writer. The remaining 49,999 he can easily obtain from the readers of entreaty, numbering perhaps a million or more.

Renaissance

This subscription plan, much on the order of that of the Theatre Guild and Eva Le Gallienne's Civic Repertory, is the first of its kind to be inaugurated by a Yiddish theatre in America. It is the birth of a new era and comes after a decade of failure and labour devoted to a cause that seems to me to be fraught at once with truth and beauty. It is with a pathetic sadness that I write of the decline of patronage in connection with the Art Theatre. I hope that next season may witness the awakening of the Yiddish throng, the selfsame throng that grows hoarse roaring for Andy Cohen, Benny Leonard, Al Jolson, Sophie Tucker, Eddie Cantor and Fanny Brice. Let's, I suggest, do a little roaring for the Yiddish Art Theatre. Such creation as finds itself within the four walls of Mr. Schwartz's cathedrals must have support.

Miniature Broadway

Maurice Schwartz has given up his pretty place on Second Avenue and Twelfth Street. He has obtained a ten-year lease on the City Theatre. This, as you may know, is a step away from another of William Fox's palaces the Academy of Music. One does not have to dig so deep into the past to unearth the fact that this district, woven about the red-brick building of Tammany Hall, once was the vortex of theatrical trade. The noise about its canyons (whenever the elevated and green lines get going) seems to be shrieking pitifully for recognition. To me it represents an ideal location, perhaps because it is so near Stuyvesant High School, where once I used to flunk. For the Yiddish theatregoer there is no spot finer. It is easily seen, easily reached.

The Past

Perhaps an irony of fate entered into the equation of the selection of the Fourteenth Street site. The City Theatre faces the Irving Place Theatre where, ten years back, Mr. Schwartz established his Yiddish Art. If you remember "Maytime" there, then you can never forget Irving Place Theatre. Shortly thereafter, he migrated to the Old Madison Square Garden, northwest wing. And there, a few paces from a heterogeneous assemblage that consisted of members of the gentle profession of modified mutilation—and circus troupers and many other things, Mr. Schwartz produced his intellectual dramas, satires and Biblical plays.

If you were in the vicinity of the Old Garden on Friday nights you must have noticed endless streams of boisterous folk eager for entrance. But this congestion was just around the corner, where Mr. Tex Rickard was thoughtful enough to promote boxing extravaganzas for the fans of Cauliflower Country. Once in a while the flow at the Yiddish Art reached delightful proportions. But the general run was never staggering. Why, I don't know. Maybe it was too far uptown."

In those Garden days with Mr. Schwartz you would have met Muni Wisenfrend, now becoming famous under the watchful care of John Golden. I should like to tell a little more of Wisenfrend, and something too, of Jacob Ben Ami, another truant. I shall tell more of them some other time.

Last year, hope sprung anew, Mr. Schwartz moved his company into the now abandoned theatre on the avenue. His most recent offering there was the Ben Selling, leading merchant and philanthropist of Portland, Oregon, has just contributed $25,000 to the $10,000,000 being raised for Jewish farm settlement work in Russia. "The growing response throughout the country to Julius Rosenwald's challenging subscription of $5,000,000 is evidenced by voluntary subscriptions coming in from various states," said James N. Rosenberg, chairman. "Mr. Max Senior, of Cincinnati, has sent in a subscription for $10,000; Messrs. Meier and Frank, of Portland, Oregon, have subscribed $5,000; and Mr. A. S. HOW DREAMS MATERIALIZE

It is our desire at certain times of the year to get away from the din of city traffic, and out to where the slightest noise would be instantly noticeable. We often think of being aboard a steamer out in mid ocean, where time hangs peacefully upon your hands, and the worries of life have fled. We dream of these things, yet little do we realize that these dreams can come true if we but pause for one moment to think. What of inland waters? We only think of them as being fit for anglers and those who delight in canoeing. But of steamers with broad white decks, where we can sit in some quiet corner and give ourselves up to dreamy thought, do we ever think of such possibilities? They do exist, and think of it, for two whole days on an ocean of your own, embarking at Port McNicoll, sweeping out across Lake Huron, through the great Soo Canal, and out over Lake Superior, the greatest body of fresh water in the world. Your dreams, therefore, can materialize, and more so if you call upon the Canadian Pacific Railway, obtaining all information regarding this wonderful trip, and finally asking them for reservations.

RESULTS OF GAMES

In the Jewish Community games of last week the games on Monday 9th, were called off by wet grounds. On Tuesday night, Mount Sinai defeated Judaean Benevolent, score 5—4, with Mac Cooper the president of the League being the hero of his team's win, while in the late game, Herzls the league leaders won an easy game from U.L.P.S., score 17 to 6, both teams getting plenty of hits, but U.L.P.S. could not score. Bill Gold and Sterling both had four hits each, Alec Bader of the U.L.P.S. also getting the same. On Wednesday night, Hasmonians won from S.A.M., score 19 to 0, the Frat team being unable to score against the good playing of the Hasmonians. The second game was won by Tuex from Bnai Brith, score 9—2, with Harry Sniderman playing a star game for his team, both in the field and at bat, while Milton Weiss was good at third base. In the games of the Monday passed, U.L.P.S. defaulted to Bnai Brith, but in the exhibition game held Bnai Brith to a 6—0 count in a well played game. Altman got three of Bnai Brith's hits, with Perlstone and Speigel playing fine ball in the field. In the last game, Judaean Benevolent won 10 to 7 from Y.M.H.A., in an evenly played game. The erection of apartment houses has been very active in Montreal since a few years and it is particularly noticeable that in a great part it is due to the Jewish contractors and builders. It is very remarkable that in all trades the Jewish business men have made a success, and it is surprising that all those which have taken the building trade are growing rapidly. It is due to the fact that they possess a great dose of initiative and financial disposition and should be proud of their results.

Amongst the Jewish prominent builders in Montreal we have the pleasure of mentioning: M. Segal & Son, Chait Construction Co., S. Bierbrier, Fisher & Greenberg, Nusselman & Gertzman, Frank & Greenberg, Spector & Yasloff, and others which under the wise advices of Bigonesse & Bigonesse, architects, and according to their plans, have erected and are still erecting apartment houses furnished with all modern equipments and of very good conception and design. The above architects are doing lots of work for Jewish concerns, and we can state without favouritism that in the near future they will be doing much more for the Jewish builders because of their ability and moreover because they are making a specialty of these plans. We can also state that these architects are treating their clients with great care and courtesy.

MONTREAL BUILDING SECTION

As in past seasons, members of Montreal Jewry are giving time and attention to building. They are spending hundreds of thousands of dollars on structures that are beautifying our city. Stately apartment houses, as modern as our age; new factory and office buildings that are built for efficiency and comfort; cosy cottages, and well-equipped stores stand as memorials to man's ingenuity, where but yesterday there were vacant lots. What makes this season stand out in Jewish building activity is, however, the interest being shown in Jewish communal buildings.

Work has already commenced on the new Y.M.H.A. Community Centre—the quarter million-dollar structure which will be erected through the generosity of the late Sir Mortimer Davis, at the northwest corner of Mount Royal Avenue and Jeanne Mance Streets. The Jewish People's Schools have bought a lot at the corner of Van Horne and De l'Epee Avenue, upon which will be erected the first Jewish cultural school in Outremont. The building committee of I. Cohen, H. Decklebaum, M. Dickstein, J. Etteneberg, J. Horn and A. Yancovitch are formulating plans for this structure which will be commenced during the winter of 1928-29.

The Jewish Laurentian Fresh Air Camp which has taken temporary quarters at St. Jerome this summer, is concentrating on plans for the erection of a permanent country home for under-privileged mothers and babes.

There are three other camps which give summer vacations to young boys and girls: the Bnai Brith Camp at Prefontaine which takes care of boys: Camp Adar, the camp for girls under the direction of Council of Jewish Women, and Camp Sunshine for girls at Shawbridge, which is under the auspices of Sons of Israel.

The Jewish People's Library, 4115 St. Urbain Street, is now conducting a campaign for funds with which to erect a modern home for Jewish culture.

The Montreal Hebrew Old People's and Sheltering Home is being built at a cost of $160,000, excluding equipment. It is planned to accommodate fifty inmates and will be one of the finest and most up-to-date institutions of its kind on the American continent. This institution, which is a constituent society of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies, will be ready for occupancy shortly.

It is on Esplanade Avenue, facing Fletcher's Field and Mount Royal. The main entrance is from Esplanade Avenue through an arched terrace set back of a wide lawn, and paved covered terrace, is sixty feet by fifteen feet for sitting out on the first floor.

The structure is of reinforced concrete, the exterior treatment being of brick and stone—the style is Georgian—there is no wood finish in the building except the doors and windows—the floors are of linoleum cemented to concrete. The kitchens, both meat and dairy, as also diet kitchens are ventilated by exhaust fans electrically driven—the staircases are of steel and marble. All floors are served by an electrically-driven elevator, and all sleeping floors and linen closets are served by linen chutes

OZONE IN VENTILATION

One of the most important uses of Ozone is in the purification of the air. The question of the purity of the air we breathe must always be one of the most engaging and serious problems. Whether the place be the home, the office, the workshop, the vehicle, the place of amusement or even the street, the condition of the atmosphere is equally important. It can scarcely be too emphatically asserted that more than half the ills we suffer from are due to the bad effect of foul air on the nervous system.

The living organism is giving off continuously a certain number of heat units which tends to increase the temperature of the air. Human beings give off organic compounds from lungs, body and clothes, which quickly putrefy, render the air unhealthy and produce an irritant effect on the nervous system. Moisture is given off from the same sources, thus increasing the humidity of the air, which makes breathing more difficult and produces a feeling of lassitude, oxygen is being consumed, thus rendering the atmosphere inefficient.

Ozone is purely and simply condensed oxygen. At the same time, it is one of, if not the most carrying soiled linen into laundry. At the rear of the building is ample fire escape opening from every floor.

On the ground floor there is a reception hall, superintendent's suite of rooms, service stairs, store rooms and servants' rooms, with bathroom accommodation and sitting room for the help. Above these on one side of the corridor a short stair leads to a Mezzanine consisting of two large locker rooms for household effects.

The second floor contains adjoining the main entrance a large lounge room thirty feet wide by fifty-nine feet long with large fireplace at each end—off this is a covered balcony fifteen feet wide by fifty-nine feet long, having an unobstructed view of Fletcher's Field, Park Avenue to the mountain.

The dining-room in the rear is thirty feet by forty-two feet, with the help's dining-room adjoining. Both of these are served by a pantry connecting to both meat and dairy kitchen. In the centre of the building with windows on each side is a chapel capable of seating fifty persons, and measuring twenty-two feet by twenty-four feet.

The third and fourth floors are identical and are laid out with twelve double rooms each, with a bath attached to every three rooms. In the centre of these three rooms is a small lounge room, twenty-two feet by fourteen feet. Across from the lounge room is an Isolation Ward of two bedrooms, a diet kitchen and bathroom.

The heating is a low pressure steam system, with ample hot water supply. The walls are painted with oil paint which enables easy cleaning. The boiler rooms, laundry and coal-bunker are situated in the basement. J. Melville Miller is the architect. J. Gilletz & Co., are the general building contractors.

The old residences which were situated on the site of the proposed Y.M.H.A. have already been demolished by W. Lajeunesse & Co., wreckers. Excavation work is rapidly being completed by the Patrick Trucking Co.

The building will have a frontage of 151 feet on Mount Royal Avenue and a depth of 117 feet on Jeanne Mance Street. It will be three storeys in height, of brick with stone trim around windows and a stone base course.

The main entrance to the building, as shown in the drawing, is on Mount Royal Avenue and leads to a central lobby around which are grouped the various social rooms, library, offices, cafeteria, etc. On Mance Street is the entrance to the auditorium, which has a seating capacity of over 500, and is provided with a smoking room, ladies' retiring room, check room, a projection room for motion pictures, and a spacious foyer. It is also provided with a sizeable stage and dressing rooms for the purpose of carrying on theatrical work.

On the lower floor is situated the swimming pool, twenty-five feet by seventy-five feet, with spectator space, two gymnasiums for men and women, men's locker and shower rooms, women's locker and shower rooms, three regulation bowling alleys, etc.

Below the lower floor is situated the boiler room, in which will also be installed the various pumps, filters, fans, etc., used in the mechanical operation of the building.

The second or top floor is devoted to educational work and group activities. There are eight club and classrooms, office space, a junior game room, and storage space.

Quarters are also provided for the resident building superintendent.

Messrs. Ross and Macdonald, of Montreal, are the architects for the building. The general contract has been awarded to Bremner, Norris & Co., Ltd., the plumbing, heating and ventilating contract to The Garth Co., and the electrical work to the Montreal Electric Co., all of Montreal.

It is expected that the building will serve about 5,000 members, and will be ready for occupation by March 1, 1929.

The building committee of the Y.M.H.A., consisting of Sol Kellert, A. H. Jassby and Alderman L. Rubenstein, was appointed by the late Sir Mortimer Davis. The staff of the institution is M. H. Weinstein, executive-director; Samuel Walters, director of physical education; Bessie Klein, physical director for women, and Rupert Caplan, director of dramatics and the office staff, I. Messinger and Miss Tauba Cohen.

J. and H. Horn, well-known restauranteurs, have completed the second link in their chain of cafeterias, with the opening of an up-to-date cafeteria at 1406 Bleury Street, above Ste. Catherine. What distinguishes this cafeteria is the attention given at all times to the preparation of strictly Jewish dishes. There one may find kreplich, knishes, kasha, home-made borstch, stchav and gefilte fish.

Factory buildings have been given more attention of late. The Canadian Waist Company, now in the Dubrule Building on Phillips Square, is erecting a well-lighted factory building at a cost of $150,000 on corners of Mount Royal Avenue, Laval and City Hall Avenues, that will be completed about October 1.

The Atlas Construction Company was in charge of work connected with a two-storey addition to the Jacobs Building at 282 St. Catherine West. This work was finished in May. Italian Mosaic Co., Guarantee Plumbing, Canadian Welding and Bedard-Girard, Limited, were among the firms engaged on the construction.

A five-storey addition to the Main Building, at the corner of St. Lawrence and Ontario, is now under construction. The building, which was erected about three years ago by Max and George Rabinovitch, was provided with a foundation for ten storeys. Adjoining this ten-storey structure, there will be erected a completely new ten-storey building, so that the new Ontario Building will be one of our finest office and factory buildings. Because of its location, it is expected to be the home of clothing industries. Of steel construction throughout, it will cost about one and a half million dollars. The erection of this Ontario Building is particularly interesting, because it marks the first step in an attempt to rebuild St. Lawrence Boulevard, and make it a main artery second only to St. Catherine Street. It is expected that an eleven-storey structure will shortly be commenced further north on St. Lawrence Boulevard, with the same people in charge: and that after that, a series of eight or ten well-planned buildings will be built at chosen spots along this old business thoroughfare. The president of the Ontario Building is Chas. G. Tonnancourt; Geo. Rabinovitch is vice-president; Max Rabinovitch, secretary-treasurer, and the directors are E. Cumberland and Henry Rieder. H. M. Caiserman, who promoted and financed the Ontario Building, is in charge of the promotion and financing of the St. Lawrence Boulevard development project.

Ozone in Ventilation

powerful germicidal and deodorizing agent known. Ozone (in Nature) is always present in a pure atmosphere. Its principal sources are, probably the electric discharges during thunder storms, the silent discharge from the clouds, the evaporation of water (and especially of saline water, as in sea foam) this being accompanied by the production of hydrogen peroxide, and the action of some vegetable products on the air. Ozone is also formed by the action of sunlight on the clouds. The ozone present in the atmosphere plays an important part in keeping the air pure and fresh, and destroying the deleterious organic matter constantly passing into the atmosphere from decomposing flesh, animal exhalations, etc.

As ozone exists naturally in the atmosphere over the sea, about hilltops and elsewhere, it has rightly been designated "Nature's disinfectant," and it presents this extraordinary advantage over all other disinfectants, that, while destroying the deleterious matter in the atmosphere, it imparts to the air at the same time certain positive properties, rendering it more healthful and invigorating for respiration. Ozone gives a most delightful "tang" to the atmosphere. It gives it a most refreshing effect, and acts on the nerves and skin in such a way as to do away with that depressing effect due to "dead" atmospheres.

Universities, hospitals, institutions, schools, theatres, apartments, departmental stores, garages, cold storage plants and offices of all descriptions are today being entirely ozonized. The Buckingham Apartments, erected by M. Maron at Van Horne Avenue and Davaar.

M. Chait is building twelve apartments of four rooms each and three stores at a cost of $60,000, at the corner of Prudhomme and Sherbrooke, that will be ready in October. He is also constructing another house of sixteen four- and five-room apartments at Decarie and Cote St. Antoine Road, at a cost of $80,000. Two buildings which he erected at Decarie and Grenier Avenue, and at Prudhomme and Cote St. Antoine Road, were sold for $56,000 and $70,000, respectively.

In the north end of the city, M. Maron finished the "Linde" and "Chamberlain" Apartments (twenty-four apartments of four and five rooms) in March, at a cost of $150,000, at Van Horne, near Davaar, and the "Buckingham" (twenty-one apartments of four and five rooms), at the corner of Davaar and Van Horne, at a cost of $140,000, in May, 1928.

An apartment house that commands the finest situation in Montreal is the "Royal View," at the intersection of Atwater Avenue and Sherbrooke Street, recently erected by the "J. and G" Construction Co. Of steel structure and reinforced concrete throughout, the building is of solid brick and stone. It is one of our finest apartment houses, and its twenty-two apartments of three, four, five and six rooms are modern in every manner.

Another very fine building is the "Whitehall" apartment house at Kensington and Sherbrooke Streets, which was recently completed by J. Gersovitz. This building is a new departure in that it contains apartments of two-storeys, that are akin to modern duplexes. Many of the suites have a living room that is two storeys high with a mezzanine floor that lends a most attractive note. Hutchison and Wood were architects for this house.

N. Shribman, of Mitchell Realty, erected a new wing, valued at $50,000 to the structure erected at Sherbrooke and Vendome Avenues, five years ago, at a cost of $80,000. The new wing, at 44 Vendome, contains twelve three-room apartments that are very beautifully equipped. Each room contains conveniences that are the last word in efficiency.

experimentation, the Photostat came into existence answering all of their requirements, for it is an inexpensive method of photographing directly on to sensitized paper, thereby eliminating the use of cuts, plates, films, etc. It fitted the needs of the insurance companies so well, that industrial concerns decided that they also could use it to great advantage. The field was then extended to construction companies who used the process to reduce large, cumbersome blueprints to workable and convenient size, and for securing copies of valuable drawings which came temporarily into their possession. In the wake of that, followed the Photostat's adoption by banking institutions as a method of reproducing signature cards for use in their branches. Now, the Photostat is not an experiment, but a necessity to architects, accountants, bankers, engineers, sales executives, advertising agencies, artists and engravers.

Because the Photostat is a fac-simile reproduction of an original, it is accepted by the court as evidence in any legal controversy. An example of this was the recent Ford Tax Suit in which over 50,000 Photostat reproductions were accepted as legal evidence. It might be mentioned that the Commercial Reproducing Company turned out these Photostat prints in record time.

From a legal angle, the Photostat is considered a real aid to attorneys as the number of documents that are reproduced for purposes of litigation prove of great value in saving the constant use of original documents. Aside from the judicial angle, reproductions are now made of treasured masterpieces of literature which formerly were locked in library vaults, but now can be studied and read by the layman or student. In other words, the Photostat is doing much to universalize education by making possible a widespread acquaintance and study of the priceless masterpieces of former civilization.

The value of any current economic necessity is measured by its future possibilities, and Mr. E. C. Kerrigan of the Commercial Reproducing Company, a recognized authority on the Photostat Process in the Middle West, predicts an extensive development of the Photostat for the future. He points out that, because of its inexpensiveness and the fact that a Photostat preserves an everlasting record of the original together with speed in reproduction, makes it a necessity not only to industrial, financial and artistic fields, but will fill a recognized need of every individual—business or domestic.

On this day of new ideas, new processes and scientific developments, attention naturally turns to the Photostat Process, a photographic development which is of invaluable aid to industrial and financial concerns.

A decade ago, the Photostat was a scientific experiment, a curosity in the photographic field; but now, the Photostat is a necessity in every line of economic endeavour.

The life insurance companies, about twenty-five years ago, needed a quick, accurate and economical method of making copies of applications, identification cards, etc. After extensive

ADVANTAGES OF USING THE "WIZARD" COAL BURNER WITH MECHANICAL DRAFT

1. It uses low-priced coal. This coal is the same quality as the high-priced coal, the only difference is that it is smaller in size and cost seven to ten dollars less per ton.

2. It gives perfect combustion with the least amount of excess air. Because a deep fuel-bed is possible, and because of the arrangement of the extra air-spaces, it mixes the air intimately with the coal, thereby reducing the amount of air necessary to burn the coal completely almost to the theoretical minimum.

3. It gives quick response of the fire. With the fire nearly out it is possible to bring it up to full blast within a few minutes.

4. It gives absolute control of the fire. It operates independently of atmospheric conditions, and any desired rate of burning is possible at any time.

5 It requires less labour in tending the fire. More coal at one time gives longer firing periods, it requires less shaking, and there is no sifting of ashes.

6. It gives greatest economy of heating. In addition to the saving on the price of coal per ton and the saving made by the reduction of heat-loss caused by excess air, in early fall and late spring, a buckwheat coal fire lasts longer and holds the fire better than the large coal, thereby actually saving in the number of tons used. Therefore, the triple saving—lower price per ton; more heat per ton, and less tons.

The Golden Book—A New Record of an Old People

In the National Museum at Jerusalem, where throng visitors from the four corners of the earth, is to be found an unique chronicle, known as The Golden Book of the Jewish people. The curiously carved covers which encase the first two volumes of this chronicle were not found amidst the ancient ruins of old Judaea, but were conceived and wrought by the quick minds and eager hands of young dreamers and artists, who gave to the form of The Golden Book a symbolic significance interpretative of the history it contains. King and emperor, peer and commoner, statesman and scholar men and women whose names still vibrate in the consciousness of the world to-day, leaders and doers who are inscribed in history for all time, and those whose names are known perhaps only to their beloved ones—side by side, page after page, they fill the volumes of The Golden Book.

Two volumes are encased in glass; a caligraphist is making entries in the third volume, which is nearly full. As he bends over an especially constructed desk, entirely oblivious to the curious who pass and re-pass through the room, he seems to merge into a figure of symbolic significance himself, holding for perpetual memory the otherwise transient moment when dreams became ideas, when thoughts became deeds.

The history of the need from which evolved The Golden Book is in itself an interesting one, for it traces back to more than a quarter of a century ago when the Keren Kayemeth Leisrael (the Jewish National Fund), which to-day is one of the chief agencies whereby the Jewish communities throughout the world contribute towards the reclaiming of the soil of Palestine for the rebuilding of a Jewish national homeland, in accordance with the Balfour Declaration, had its beginning. When the necessity of rebuilding a national home became clear to the Jewish people, they realized immediately that the redemption of the soil was the foundation of all their activities. The Keren Kayemeth began to keep private records of all those who deserved recognition, both Jew and Gentile, for the assistance given towards this idea. It was inevitable that the records, which contained such names as His Majesty King George, Wilhelmina, Queen of the Netherlands, the late Woodrow Wilson, President Calvin Coolidge, Lord Balfour and the statesmen to whose efforts is due the Balfour Declaration, General Allenby, Sir Herbert

Social Life in 1905— Do You Remember?—

In Montreal at a meeting of the Young People's Society of Shaar Hashomayim, Hesse Cohen read a paper on "Characteristics of a Peculiar People." Dr. D. A. Hart lectured on "Jewish Historians," and Miss Sarah Goldstein sang. Miss Mildred Garfinkel played the piano. David Levi gave the vote of thanks, seconded by A. Friedman. The marriage took place of Miss Helene Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lewis, 4464 Sherbrooke Street, to Arthur Heinscheimer, of Buffalo. The ceremony was performed by Rabbi Nathan Gordon of Temple Emanu-El. The bride wore a lace robe over taffeta and a tulle veil with coronet of orange blossoms. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Helen Lewis, and Miss Rosalind Lewis, of Montreal, and Miss Aimy Heinscheimer, of Buffalo. The best man was Harry Heinscheimer, of Buffalo, brother of the groom. The groomsmen were Mark Heinsheimer and Felix L. Lewis. Mrs. H. Stern returned from New York. Miss Addie Stern returned from Toronto. Mr. and Mrs. Sam Myers went back to Ottawa. Mr. and Mrs. M. Hirsch came home from New York. Mrs. Horace Joseph gave a dance for "not-outs." Mrs. Joseph Youngheart entertained at Morgan's. A Great Organization Which Ensures Uniformity in Quality of Whole Milk and Ice Cream

From hundreds of prize dairy farms throughout Western Ontario, the Carruthers-Silverwood Company receive their supplies for Ice Cream and "Whole" Milk distribution.

It is because of the wide selection of these sources of supply that strict uniformity in the high content of butterfat (cream) in the milk is made possible.

Thus the great Carruthers-Silverwood "chain of service" is demonstrated not only in the prompt delivery of "Whole" Milk from each one of 19 dairies in Ontario cities and towns, but it extends right to the sources of supply which guarantee uniform richness in quality of "Whole" milk and "Smoother than Velvet" Ice Cream throughout the entire year.

New building of ten dwellings and five stores, erected for L. Roth, G. Handelman & M. Caplan, by B. Kaplan, at Wellington Street and Second Avenue, Verdun. Romeo Beaudry, architect.

Samuel, the noted Jewish philanthropist, Baron de Rothschild, Theodor Herzl, the beloved leader of the movement and others of worldwide importance, should assume an historical significance. It was then that dreamers and artists conceived the thought of making these records of permanent value and The Golden Book—now known to Jews the world over and to those interested in Palestine—came into being. It became the new history of an old people whose cry, through ages of homeless wandering, had been: "Leshana Habah Be-Jerusalem!"—"Next year in Jerusalem!"

Each volume of The Golden Book contains over five thousand entries. There is a vast difference between the volumes, both in contents and in external appearance, though each, in itself, is a pageant of Jewish history of to-day, a mirror of Jewish life scattered throughout the world. The covers of the first volume are alive with symbolism—a rising sun, ears of corn and bunches of grapes. It came into being when the idea of a Jewish homeland in Palestine was hardly past the stage of a dream, when one needed symbols to express the somewhat nebulous disturbances of the love of a nation crying for the soil where it might plant itself and flourish.

But the second volume, with its covers of chased work and ornamentation of carved ivory, emerged from the vague symbolism of the first. The second volume, as its contents, marks a forward step in the realization of Eretz Israel, the land of Israel. The decorations here are closely bound to the past of the people, the beautiful carved work interpreting purely biblical motifs.

JEWISH BOYS' CLUB

In an exhibition game, Elizabeth defeated the Jewish Boys' Club, score 16—9. The Lizzies scored twelve runs in the first innings off Winbaum, who could not locate the plate. He then steadied down and only permitted the Lizzies three hits for the rest of the game. Sokoloff starred for the winners, while Rubenstein and Pustil played well for the Jewish boys. The Jewish Boys' Club will meet the winners of either the Tely or the Playground Leagues during the week of August 3.

Rabbi Marius Ranson, of Albany, N.Y., has been selected as one of the two American editors of "Oriens, The Oriental Review," which is published in Paris. The editors of "Oriens" are recruited from among the most eminent scholars in the world, the editors in Great Britain being Sir William Ramsay and Professor Canney of the University of Manchester. Rabbi Ranson succeeds the late Professor A. Embly of Johns Hopkins University, the other American editor being Dr. F. A. Blake, also a Professor at Johns Hopkins. In 1923, Rabbi Ranson won international recognition in the "Jewish Anthology" compiled by the French poet, M. Edmond Fleg, and published in Paris, Rabbi Ranson's chapter on "Bergson's Philosophy and Judaism" being one of the very few American contributions to this volume.

The Jews can learn a lesson of watchful waiting from the Scotch when it comes to taking jokes about members of the race. The Scotch have never been called cry-babies although the Irish and the Jews have. The Scotch accept jokes about their thrift with good humour and may even tell a few on themselves. It takes a Jew or an Irishman to get insulted properly and to the core. These generalizations seem to be justified in a measure by the fact that Jewish and Irish jokes over the radio have been hotly resented during radio history while the Scotch allowed jokes about them enough rope to hang themselves. For the general public complained, as a result the Scotch joke about thrift, which is as time-worn as the one about the mother-in-law, has been declared dead by Station WEEI of Boston. The Scotch have listened to variations on the theme with extreme patience and perhaps wisdom. But all the non-Scotch got sick of it so the joke about tag day in Scotland when there was no one to be seen and all the other similar efforts are off the programme. Jews couldn't have waited that long. The Irish wouldn't have waited, but the Scotch—well, they're canny.

A Jew by the name of Simon Minsky, of Brooklyn, N.Y., was denied the privilege to change his name by a supreme court of justice. He had picked out something radically different as his name by choice. It was to have been Cyril Merrill and must have had a grand sound to Minsky. But the justice didn't like it. He probably suspected Minsky of reading the wrong kind of books with the wrong kind of covers. Anyway, he spoke his mind plainly and said he saw nothing wrong with the name Simon Minsky already had. This name is not as ugly as it might be; it is certainly less absurd for a Jew than Cyril Merrill; it is easy to spell and is not an uncomfortable name. On the face of it the justice showed good sense and a justifiable degree of impatience. But Minsky wanted to change his name to one which apparently was meant to be a protective covering. Minsky would rather be Merrill. Who brought this about? Doubtless the very Christians of the better business class who sneer at Jews for being deceitful cowards with no self-respect when these Jews do business under non-Jewish sounding names. It is well-known among Jews that a Jewish-sounding name will often cause a Christian to refuse even an audience to a man. The Christian thinks a Jew a cad for changing his name or for using one name for business and another for pleasure. The Christian is guilty of judging a man in advance of his conduct. He talks about good-will to men. Does he include Jews and fair play to them when he visits his prejudice against an entire group on any one individual? The wealthy and aristocratic Cabots of Massachusetts went to court rather than have the Kabotchniks legally change to Cabots. But usually a Cohen can be Cabot if he wants to and it sometimes serves the originals right.

Toronto Jews read in a recent article in the Mail and Empire that Jews, actors and bookmakers in London, England, are to be refused one-day insurance policies on hired motors cars, following instructions issued by English insurance brokers. This article, by the way, appeared first in the Sunday Express and was syndicated in this country. In explaining their instructions the insurance brokers said that "The Jews when hiring cars pack them with families and children and drive off for a joyous outing irresponsibly without caring about the car because it is insured. A very high number of claims have been received from Jews. Therefore the companies must be careful." Yes, yes, of course the companies must be careful. You have to see their point of view. They hate to have their cars stretched from holding too many people, the tops punctured from the upper layer of heads and the fenders affected in the way fenders get from joyous outings too irresponsibly undertaken and conducted. But it must be thrilling to the detached observer to see Jews achieve the joyous abandon which only actors and bookmakers can maintain in the midst of the chilly English atmosphere. The Nordics have a way of thinking that a motor car is a thing to loll around in with a certain number of square feet per person and between persons. The Jews complained of by the insurance brokers hold no such foolish prejudices. To them a motor car is for everybody. An advantage is that no one can ever be thrown through the windshield, for he has to be pried out, ironed off and walked up and down at his destination to keep from being a paralytic forever. It is plain to see that in this case the unemotional insurance brokers are simply ignoring the human element. There are so many things they can't comprehend or experience. One is hiring a car, packing it with children and families and driving off for a joyous outing irresponsibly without caring for the car. f.f.c.

SOFT BALL SATURDAY

To-morrow night at Hampden Park on Shaw Street, a softball game is being played between Bell Telephone, who won the city championship last year, and the Linkerts from Hamilton, who have been one of the best teams in the country for the last few years, winning the Ontario Championship in 1927, and the Inter-City League in the year before. Last year, three of the Bell team were Jewish boys well-known in the Jewish Community League, Earl Freeman, who has gone to California, and Harry and Willie Sniderman, both of whom are starring in the Jewish loop this year. Harry Sniderman is known as the best softball pitcher in this city, and is manager of the Tuex team, who are in the running in the Jewish League. The Hamilton pitcher, Webb, is said to be the fastest pitcher in the country.

Friends and relatives of Aldo Pontremoli, Jewish engineer who accompanied General Nobile on the "Italia," are much concerned over his fate. Up to date nothing has been heard about him.

Roumania and the Minorities

One of the most vexing and baffling problems left us by the great war was that of the religious and racial minorities. In many instances religious and racial are interchangeable terms so far as the problem is concerned, as in the case of the Jew. In the re-drawing of boundary lines at the peace conference great groups, of an alien tongue and religion, suddenly found themselves citizens of a new country—or at least residents in it. The result has been that ever since the redistribution there has been constant friction between the old and the new inhabitants and constant oppression and persecutions of the new races and religions, with, in some cases, actual violence by citizens, which if not investigated by government is often condoned by it. Deprivations of all national rights and absolute denial of justice has been an almost universal complaint on the part of these minorities.

The complaints of persecutions and injustices have been loudest from minorities in Roumania. The American Committee on the Rights of Religious Minorities, made up of forty eminent citizens, with offices at 70 Fifth Avenue, New York, as well as the headquarters of the Presbyterian, Baptist, Unitarian, Roman Catholic and Jewish communions has been receiving ever since the war a constant stream of complaints from the minorities in Roumania, petitioning for justice, release from oppression, free exercise of the rights guaranteed them under the peace treaties, and recognition by the Roumanian Government of the same free citizenship exercised by the native born Roumanians. These petitions and cries for help became so insistent that the American Committee decided last spring (1927) to send a carefully chosen delegation to Roumania to make a thorough study and investigation of the whole situation.

The commission was composed of Dr. Henry A. Atkinson, of the World Alliance for International Friendship through the Churches; Rev. R. A. McGowan, of the Social Action Department of the National Catholic Welfare Conference; Dr. John Howard Lathrop, pastor of the Unitarian Church of the Savior in New York; Dr. Graham Hunter, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Fullerton, California; and Pastor Jules Jezequel, Paris secretary of the World Alliance, and an outstanding leader of the French Protestant churches. They reached Bucharest early in June and remained until the end of July. They invited practically all those sections of the new Roumania where the minorities problem have been acute, including Transylvania, the Maramuresch, the Banat, Moladvia, Bessarabia, and Bukovina. In every town they visited, they followed the method of interviewing the clergy—Jewish, Eastern Orthodox, Roman Catholic and Protestant alike, the editors of the local newspapers, the school teachers, lawyers, public men, officials where they could get access to them and make them talk, business men and other citizens. This commission has just submitted its report to the American Committee of the Rights of Religious Minorities in a book of 150 pages under the title "Roumania Ten Years After." (Published by The Beacon Press, 25 Beacon Street, Boston, at $1.50.) The report consists of ten chapters dealing with the Background, the Economic System, the Psychology of Fear, anti-Jewish Propaganda, the Government Attitude Toward the Administration of the Law, Citizenship, The Schools, The Churches, and Conclusions. The final chapter is the separate report Pastor Jezequel made to the French churches.

The report emphasizes the fact that it is rather hopeless to expect the correction of separate abuses until there is a radical change on the part of the Roumanian Government in its policies in dealing with the minorities. The report is of unusual interest because it not only criticizes the policy of the Roumanian Government, but recognizes the difficulties of its task in assimilating hundreds of thousands of aliens who are still steeped in the traditions of Hungary rather than Roumania, and who cling to other faiths than that of the National Church. Further, "they hope," to quote their own words, "that this report may prove not only informative to the committee which sent us, but also of constructive suggestion to the Roumanian Government when it has had an opportunity to see how the situation looks to outside and unprejudiced persons."

The report shows that the deputation was unanimous in feeling that the anti-Jewish propaganda in Roumania is part of a widespread and ugly manifestation of racial and religious hatred. The commission found that a hideous campaign of intimidation and brutality was being carried on against the Jewish citizens and especially against the Jewish students in universities. Especially they feel that it is most unfortunate that students for the priesthood of the state church should have taken part in demonstrations against the Jewish students and other fellow students on the basis of racial and religious prejudices. Also, that it is extremely unfortunate that the state church should have sanctioned the National Christian Defense League and the National Roumanian Christian Students' Union, whose programme and publications are a disgrace to civilization, an insult to Christianity and a black blot on the fair name of Roumania. Also, they feel that there is a grave danger to Roumania itself, in allowing the youth in the universities and schools to conduct anti-Semitic agitations. Students who grow up in the atmosphere of anti-Semitic bitterness are going to be the teachers and citizens of tomorrow, and unless Roumania somehow represses this bitterness she may find a pogrom upon her hands, over which she will have no control.

The commission made a very thorough study of the situation of the minorities in Transylvania. Of the five million

NORTHERN ONTARIO CANADA

Northern Ontario, now open for settlement at fifty cents per acre, contains millions of acres of the finest agricultural land in the world. Its resources in lumber, minerals, water, power, fish, game and scenery are immense. The land calls for men to cultivate it, and in return will give health, comfort and prosperity.

What settlers say of the soil, climate, farming and forest life, is told in a most attractive booklet issued under the direction of the Honourable John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario. Full instructions in regards to acquiring a title to these rich agricultural lands are also given.

inhabitants in Transylvania when it was ceded to Roumania by the peace treaties, it was found that there were about one million Roman Catholics of Hungarian descent and 775,000 Protestants of various extractions. In Roumania the Greek Orthodox Church is the church of the state. All the other churches are only tolerated. While in theory the state offers freedom to these minority churches, yet the commission found a policy in operation which throttles their creative work and keeps them from becoming progressive forces for righteousness and spirituality. "This policy" says the commission "seems to be due to three factors: first, the unreadiness on the part of the Government to consider institutional or expressional work as the necessary part of church work; second, ancient racial or religious prejudices; and third, political fear." This fear probably plays the largest part in the persecution. The commission found that Roumania had partially repressed the institutional work of the minority churches in many places. At times the Government has interfered with meetings for worship and in many places Sunday evening services have not been permitted. The Baptists have been harassed in their attempts to hold religious meetings, being forbidden in some instances even to meet in private houses. They are not allowed to sell Bibles. The commission was also told again and again that the state has sanctioned efforts to force the state religion on the children of the minority churches. On certain holidays the children of the minority religions are forced to attend the Mass of the Orthodox Church. It found many complaints of forcing the children in Government Orphanages to adopt the Orthodox religion. The minorities are also heavily burdened to pay for the construction of Orthodox buildings.

The agrarian laws have been unfairly enforced against the minority churches, much of their land having been confiscated, in some instances even churches and church buildings having been taken. The state has also interfered with the training of church workers. Another complaint which was made everywhere was that the minority religions have nothing like proportionate representation in the Senate, while every Orthodox Bishop is allowed a seat in the Senate, the law allows only one Roman Catholic Bishop, one Presbyterian and one German Lutheran, a seat there. The Baptists, with 200,000 followers, is not recognized at all. The Hungarian-speaking Lutheran Church has no representation. Violence has also been practiced in several instances against the Baptists, although most of the violence is confined to attacks upon the Jewish groups.

The report of the commission is devoted not only to the matter of persecution and repression and violence, but gives an excellent survey of the whole situation as regards education in Roumania, which constitutes a very valuable chapter. It tells about the repression of the schools of the minorities, but it also devotes much space to the constructive Roumanian movements and praises them. One of the best chapters in the book is entitled "The Psychology of Fear" and is a plain statement to Roumania that it is not by fear that the affection of the minorities and their attachment to the state is to be won. The conclusions of the report are a friendly appeal to the Roumanian Government to win the minorities to the state by justice, fair dealing and sympathy and fullest representation in government. The commission was deeply impressed by the fact that there are in these annexed territories of greater Roumania, great resources of educated citizenship from which the Roumanian Government could draw with great profit for the service of the state.

Roumania has an unequalled opportunity to face courageously a complex situation and to attempt the solution of a problem which, while perplexing, is yet capable of a peaceful solution. Roumania can go far toward solving the question if she wills to do so. When she signed the Minorities Treaty she assumed the obligation, as a member of the family of nations, to deal justly with all the minorities within her borders.

"American Chasidim," a rollicking satire on that ultra-orthodox wing of Jewry. The Chasidim, just a little younger than Time itself, held fast to the conception that mind, matter, God and the universe are all one.

A Theatre Rises

In September of this year, Mr. William Roland will usher in his "New Million Dollar Yiddish Theatre." This, the very newest of Yiddish houses, will be called the Rolland Theatre and will locate at Eastern Parkway and St. John's Place, Brooklyn, known technically as Brownsville. Mr. Rolland plans to present musical shows, filling in with dramas on week-days. His theatre, he tells me, is being built to conform with the type of structure that is best suited for the presentation of musical productions. Harrison Wiseman, an architect of some note, also designed the Yiddish Art Theatre on the avenue. There is to be one balcony, an innovation introduced in the Public Theatre last year. Several lounges and a snappy usher system will serve to add some glamour to the Rolland. There will be a seating capacity of 1,652.

Mr. Rolland, of course, will manage and Michal Michalesko will direct, as well as act in the capacity of leading man. Miss Lucy Levin, that charming young prima donna of the Second Avenue Theatre, has been engaged as leading lady. Among others who will find themselves there next season may be listed Anna Lubin, Jacob Wexer and Jacob Reichtzeit. Sholom Secunda will swing the baton. Mr. Rolland achieves his ambition after some twelve years affiliation with the Yiddish stage.

The first conference of Jewish peasants of Bukowina was opened with the participation of thirty-one delegates.
